Bright Minds, Brought Together

To understand the challenges of today's global marketplace and build a professional network, you need hands-on, interdisciplinary learning. Through our centers and initiatives, we bring together our brightest students, researchers and practitioners to discover inventive solutions and best-practice uses of emerging technologies in fields including enterprise risk management, business sustainability and consumer innovation.

A Place to Thrive

In the Jenkins MBA program, you'll find challenging coursework that includes practical experience and projects that teach you how to work on a team in a fun, collaborative environment. For every hour spent in the classroom, students typically spend two to three hours outside of class studying and working in teams.

But it's not all work and no play. Raleigh, the home of NC State's 2,010-acre campus, is rated by Forbes as the No. 3 best place for business and careers. With a reputation as one of the world's top five emerging tech hubs, the city also plays host to a thriving cultural and entertainment scene that attracts young professionals and growing families.
